This invention relates to a method of and an apparatus for separating metal ions from a solution. More specifically, it relates to such a method and apparatus for recovering copper metal ions from a waste solution, such as a spent bath of a plating solution. The semiconductor and printed circuit industries have been moving rapidly toward an increased use of copper as a standard wiring metal. This has led to an increased use of copper metal in the form of processing solutions. Copper metal is used in such solutions, for example, to plate conductors on various surfaces, such as printed circuit boards. This is usually accomplished by injecting f678ea9f9e
